Angelo De Francisco was born in Milan in 1951, where he lives and works today; he achieved both classic and art degrees and then moved on to attend the Art Academy of Brera. Since 1968 he has expressed himself through painting and drawing, using materials like wood, plastic, enamel and oils, he also experiments with sculpture and non-fiction writing. Many of his art exhibitions from the 80's attest to these explorations. However since 2000, he feels that painting has lost its ability to allow him to fully express his inner self; therefore the digital camera, scanner and imaging software have taken the place of his paintbrush. Even photography, very early on, seemed to him a medium too static and rigid to capture continuous variations of form and colour that follow one after the other, like frames of a filmstrip - hence, it was just a short step from image to video. Music and words, in these videos, play an important role as the artist himself composes them through meditation and a digital piano. In 2008, on the occasion of the Olympics, the Chinese Olympic Committee commissioned from him a large-scale work on sport, which will be on display in several international museums before being ultimately placed in the Beijing Art Museum.
